

Press Release

Paris, October 6th 2022

Inetum and neosight simplify and optimise data flow for SAP controlling teams.

Inetum, a leading European digital services and solutions company, and neosight, a subsidiary of Axy's Consultants Group and one of SAP's main partners in France for transformation projects towards cloud solutions, announce that they are joining forces to offer complete coverage of all their customers' needs in their budgeting processes.

The solution offered by both companies, technologically based on the SAP Analytics Cloud application, will enable customers to standardize, simplify and automate their activities during the planning process, allow them to deepen data analysis, optimize the daily activity of the controlling team and guarantee data quality, all through a collaborative, secure and orchestrated budgeting process with process flow management.

Inetum and neosight's product is a single solution that covers both planning needs and financial data visualization, as well as prediction or simulation of future scenarios. In addition, this end-to-end planning management solution integrates natively with SAP ERP and can be easily integrated with other SAP and non-SAP data sources.

"We offer our customers a product that is a radical shift in the way they understand and manage enterprise performance management (EPM) software processes. We give them an option that is not only easier to integrate into their day-to-day business, but also faster. We will study their processes, define their roadmap, implement it and they will be able to replace an obsolete system with a much more modern one," says Michael Perrin, Group VP Business Unit SAP in France at Inetum.

For his part, Arnaud Gremine, partner at neosight, indicates that the use of SAP Analytics Cloud will enable companies to "increase their analytical capacity, plan their budgeting procedures quickly and easily, and access previously unknown information about their business thanks to predictive analytics and machine learning".

As a leader in digital services and solutions, Inetum, after more than two decades of close business collaboration with SAP, has market recognition through the SAP certification program. Inetum is a global company that has a business line dedicated to SAP consulting, with over 27,000 employees worldwide and 2000 expert consultants who develop projects in all sectors and technology areas, to help its customers make the most of the digital flow.
